Crowley says Woodsy got the idea from Brought to Bay at Last, or the Red Rovers of life with a revolver and a bowle knife. "Only," Crowley added with a grin, "de bloke in d' 'Red Rovers' wuzn't such a chump Woodsy 'nd 'e didn't let d' cops coli'r 'im.' Woodsy, it is true, had the requisite arsenal, but before he could get to the Spanish Main the officers of the law brought him to bay, and low he is languishing in a dungeon. Woodsy is only 13 years old. His real name s Thomas Woods, but the last boy who called him "Tommy" had to fight. His home is with widowed mother and his big brothers at 228 West Sixty-first street. He used to go to school, but when vacation came last year he decided that he knew enough. He had moved only a short time before that from Fifty-eighth street to Sixty-first street. his present home, and he formed new ties. The boys in Fifty-eighth street had a gang of which Woodsy used to be the leader, and when he came to Sixty-first street the "Chilles" received him with open arms, for they had heard of him. But the "Fifty-eight' Streeders" were wroth at this, and they declared war against the "Chillies," and that is how it all came

Crowley, aged 14, explained it yesterday afternoon like this:
"Me'n' Woodsy w'z comin' down d' street 'e afternoon 'nd a couple o' de Fifty-ate streeders come up 'nd begun t'chuck bluffs. Dey w'z just out o' school 'nd me 'n' Woodsy w'z playin hookey. One o' dem sez to Woodsy, sezzy: You'll ketch it w'en d' toacher sees ye.' y' talkin' ter?' sez Woodsy. 'Blamed if I know, d'feller said, 'nd den Woodsy got huffy. Don'tche gimme any yor lip,' he sez. Den dey gave d' cry, 'nd de gang came runnin' up. Woodsy sez t' me, sezzy: 'I ain't ben Woodsy sez t' me, sezzy: 'I ain't got me pop wid me,' 'nd he gumme d' wink. I guv d' Chillie cry, 'nd d' fellers come up lookin' I'r scrap. Woodsy sez t' d' fellers. 'Sock it to 'em,' 'nd he up wid a rock 'nd fired t at d' Fifty-ate streeders. 'Y will, will yo,' sezzy, 'nd he ups 'nd fires again. Den dey fired back: 'nd jeel we had a dalay scran. We smashed d' pane in d' lamp post, 'nd we w'z acgivin' it to 'em like biazes wen some one yelled. 'Cheese it, d' cop!' 'nd 'fore we know'd it Woodsy w'z nathed wid a rock in 'iz hand. Sa-ay, wo'll 'e get?' "He had a revolver, 'id he?" "He had a revolver, 'id he?" "He had a revolver, 'id he?" "He didn't have it on 'im t' day, but 'es got a jim dandy home. Y'd otter see it. It's a 'irty-ahe-cal' bre. He got a bowie, too. bt 'e never uses it 'cept t' practise makin' it stick in d' telly-pole, 't nights. Aw, say, Woodsy's a chump. W'en 'e read 'Brought t' Bay, 'rde Red Kovers o' de Main, 'he sez he w'z a gzw'n t' do Main, too. He held up de kids wot w'z rushin' de growlers, 'nd he swiped de cash off'n 'em. de school 'nd paralyze de kids wot w'z late. I knew he'd get collared some day."

The reporter went to the Yorkville Police Court prison where Woodsy sat. The boy was sad and had been crying, but he recovered himself and was soon in smiling humor.

"Au, I ain't a got no pop" he said. "Who's been kiddh't ye?"

"Crowley told me." -! I'll belt d'jaw off

"Do "! I'll belt d'jaw off him wen I get out if I don't, dammy. Sa-ay, I'll give it t' ye straight f' ye don't gimme away. I w'z gaw'n t'slope 'nd I got me a pop'nd a bowie. 'J'ever rend 'Brought t' Bay at last 'r de Bed Rovers o' de Spanish Main'? Jee, t's great. I rend it ten times.'

"Aw, he's a bloody linr. I jest scared 'em f'r fun. Sa-ay, it w'z de funniest t'ing y' ever saw. I got a mask wot me sister fetched home f'm a maskraste ball 'nd I stood in de alley wid a bottle in me hand, 'nd den I scared de kids. Jee, y'd order seen 'em run."
"How about keeping boys away from school?"

How about keeping boys away from School?"
"Dat w'z great. I wanted d' dids t' play ball, 'nd wen dey said dey wouldn't I showed 'em me pop. Dey stayed every shot, 'nd we had bully fun: sany, mister, I didn't do nuthin'. (Woodsy was becoming serious.) Dey won't send me up t'd Flawmertory, will dey Crowley's wuss 'n me 'nd dey don't touch him. D' cop had a grudge again' me."
He became silent, and after a while, with a rogaish claverness he said:
"Sany, I w z jurk kiddin' ye. I ain't got no pop 'r a bowie. Dey h'long t' Crowley. Strike me dead if dey don't."
The keeper thought it was time for Woodsy to eat his supper, and the interview came to an end. Officer Bambrick of the West Forty-seventh street station, who made the arrest, said the fallow Woodsy

"That fellow Woodsy is a regular kid buc-caneer. If he isn't kept in confinement he'll commit murder some day. He and another lad they call Crowley are the lenders of the most victous gang of little cutthronts I ever saw. The trouble is that they're as slippery as eels and you never can lay your hands on them. Woodsy was held for examination this afternoon and I guess the Gorry Society will look out for him."

ACTOR GEORGE KYLE'S DEATH.

Stricken With Apoplexy at the Salmagund Club-Unconscious for Several Days. There was an entertainment at the Salmagundi Club last Friday night in which George Kyle, an actor of some note retired from the stage about a year, was to take part. When the time for his performance came he walked to the plano, seated himself, struck a few notes, and suddenly fell forward over the keys, while his left arm dropped limp at his side. As Kyle had been laughing and joking in his usual exuberant spirits but a moment before, this attack of apoplexy made a strong impression upon the people who were prepared to laugh at his part of the performance.

He was put in a cab and was driven to his home at 300 West 112th street, which is also the home of his sister, Mrs. M. K. Dallas. Dr. Joseph B. Kirby was called in, and under his exertions Kylo recovered consciousness. although the paralysis of his left side continued. On Saturday afternoon Dr. Kirby was summoned hastily and found that Kyle, after a few convulsive movements, had apparently dted. His heart had stopped beating and his pulse had ceased to be perceptible. So far as pulse had ceased to be perceptible. So far as the ordinary signs of life were concerned Kyle was dead. But Dr. Kirby used the most powerful restoratives, and in twenty minutes Kyle's heart and pulse began to beat. He recovered rapidly and was soon in as fair a way toward health apparently as he had been on Saturday morning.

On Sunday afternoon Kyle once more shuddered several times, and then as quickly as the report of a pistol ceased to show any signs of life wintover. Again he was to all appearances dead, but no more so than on the previous afternoon. And as the hours passed his hody remained warm, in fact grow warmer than it had been just before the coming on of the convulsion, except that the end of his nose was cold. The color remained in his cheeks, and, except for the silence of pulse and heart, the conditions of life plainly existed.

After soveral hours had passed Dr. Kirby was certain that the man must be dead. But in the evening he brought around a powerful lattery and something mysterious and set to work. The muscles were so rigid that the battery had no effect upon them, and the points of contact showed no trace of redness. The, color-too, had gradually faded from the body and the warmth began to die out. After working for several hours Dr. Kirby gave up hope and told Mrs. Dallas that her brother was certainly dead.

Mrs. Dallas was of this opinion herself, but she could not bring herself to let the undertaker embalm the body. So all day Monday

Mrs. Dallas was of this opinion herself, but she could not bring herself to let the undertaker embalm the body. So all day Monday they watched the corpse to see if it would show any sign of life. Yesterday morning Mrs. Dallas sent for Dr. Kirby to make a last examination. He found the body cold and the evidences of death unmistakable.

The funeral will take place either to-day or to-morrow, to-morrow being the last day under the law. Kyle was married many years ago, and had by the marriage one son, who survives him. His wife died suddenly two years ago in the house where he now lies dead. He was on the road with a company of players at the time. After her death he left the stage and devoted his time to writing short stories and political articles for magazines.

Mr. Kyle was 34 years old. He took the principal part in "The Private Secretary," and has appeared on the stage at various times in The Chimes of Normandy." "The Jolly Bachelors," "Zig Zag," and in the "Widow Bedott."

ON COMPLAINT OF ANNIE WEILBRUER. Adam Welss, a Young Married Man, Ar-rested Yesterday on Staten Island,

Adam Weiss is a young married man living years old, of Hart street, Williamsburgh, appeared at the Edgewater Police Court, in Stapleton, S. I., yesterday, and obtained a warrant for his arrest for betrayal under promise of marriage. She says that she has known Welss about a year, but did not know he was a married man. About three months ago she attended a dance in Williamsburgh, marry her. She went to Staten Island with him, and there, she says, he kept her under restraint, so that she could not see her friends. During his absence, about a week ago, she restraint, so that she could not see her friends, During his absence, about a week ago, she made her escape.

Welss is 25 years old, and is a driver for Bachman's brewery at Clifton. He was arrested yesterday, and released on his own recognizance to appear for examination. He denies the charges made against him, and characterizes them as an attempt at blackmail. His story is that he met the girl at a ball, and had a conversation with her and danced with her once or twice. At the close of the ball, and as he was about to go home he saw her sitting in a corner of the room crying. He went over and asked her what the trouble was, and she said she was afraid to go home at that hour of the night, as her parents would scold her. She pleaded with him to take her to his house and give her employment as housekeeper, and he acceded to her frequest. He denies having had improper relations with her. (Welss's wife and four children live in Brooklyn, and he was arrested last week on his wife's complaint, accusing him of abandonment and non-support.
